

1874-03-14

SENDER

Ottilia Jacobsen

RECIPIENT

Carl Jacobsen

FACTS

Document type:

Letter

Language:

Engelsk

Sender's location:

Copenhagen

Recipient's location:

Copenhagen

Archive:

Carlsberg arkiv

TRANSCRIPTION

14 Marts 1874 [tilføjet med blyant af Carl Jacobsen]

4 Dronningens Tvergade

Saturday Afternoon

Dear Mr. Jacobsen

Just permit me to thank you many times for the lovely Phillepine present that was waiting for med today when I came home; then next for the lovely verses of Musset which are really beautiful both in thought and language. Still one can at once see through those passionate verses that it was only a momentary affection he had for Minon. Six months is such a very short time that very few people especially those of a lively and impulsive character, can be quite sure if their feelings are of the right kind of love that binds them for ever so I hopethat Musset was careful not to pay his vows till he was perfectly sure of himself, or or minion to answer them till she had had occasion to try herself. This is now my opinion as you would say with a furious look ("Dette er nu min Mening") and I will not change it till I am convinced that I am wrong. Again with many thanks

Believe me

Yours very sincerely Ottila Stegman

14 March 1874

Dear Mr Jacobson. 4 Grosvenors Terrace
Saturday Afternoon

First permit me to thank you many times for the lovely Phillisine present that was waiting for me today when I came home; then next for the lovely verses of Musset, which are really beautiful both in thought & language. Still one can at once see through those passionate verses that it was only a momentary affection he had for Elvire. Six months is such a very short time that very few people especially those of a lively & impulsive character, can be quite sure if their feelings are of the right kind of love that binds them for ever, so I hope that Musset was careful not to pay his vows till he was perfectly sure of himself, or Elvire so much till she had had occasion to try herself. This is now my opinion as you would say with a furious look ("I tell you my own meaning") and I will not change it till I am convinced that I am wrong. Again with many thanks Believe me
Yours very sincerely
Edwin Stephens